BAD NEWS FOR AXIS PREDOMINATES FROM ALL PARTS OF GLOBE

Japanese Invasion Base Is Shattered by American
Bombers

HEADACHE IN RUSSIA

British Complete Preparations
For Assault to Smash
Mareth Line

By International News Service

Bad news for the Axis was predominant in today's war reports from the four corners of the earth as plans of the United Nations were shaping up for further offensives in all directions.

In the southwest Pacific a Jap invasion base was shattered by American bombers as Washington announced that American submarines had sunk 4 more Japanese ships, one of them a destroyer.

Hitler got his bad news in Russia where remanned Soviet troops seized the initiative in the battle on the Upper Donets river. He also must have a headache from the growing guerrilla warfare on the continent now spreading through France in addition to Romania, Greece and Yugoslavia.

Trouble for the future was in store for the Axis as Washington announced that "complete" accord had been reached between the United States, Great Britain and Canada on a concentrated program of anti-submarine warfare while in southern Tunisia, the British Eighth Army, making a slight advance, was completing final preparations for an assault calculated to smash the Mareth line.

The most significant turn in the battle of Russia was the Moscow report that German forces threatening to cross the upper Donets in an effort to cut off Russian troops retreating from Kharkov, had been turned back. More than 1,500 Nazi troops were slain on this front alone in a pitched battle between heavy forces of tanks and infantry.

Southeast of Kharkov, a Russian tank force turned back one of three columns driving beyond the industrial city.

The Berlin radio denied this, however, and insisted that Nazi troops had advanced to a point 50 miles beyond Kharkov.

The Russians also reported an advance in their drives against Smolensk and Staraya Russa, stating that 18 lo-

Workmen Slightly Hurt As Packing Case Falls

Two workmen, slightly injured at their place of employment yesterday afternoon when a packing case filled with glass fell on them, had returned to their employment this morning, according to officials of Rohm & Haas Co.

The injured: Edward Hunter, Edgely, who sustained bruises and contusions of the lower part of the back; and Pete Vattimo, Wood street, abrasions and contusions of the loin.

Vattimo was treated by Dr. J. Fred Wagner and returned to his home at once; while Hunter remained in the Wagner private hospital for about two hours before going to his residence.

The accident occurred late yesterday afternoon at the Rohm & Haas plant, and the two were taken to the hospital in one of the company cars.

IS IN HOSPITAL

James McHugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McHugh, Corson street, is a patient in Abington Hospital, suffering from mastoids.

Bensalem Residents Look Forward To Demonstration

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 17.—At a special meeting in Bensalem Township high school auditorium tomorrow evening at eight o'clock, there will be given a demonstration of what happens before, during and after an air raid. Civilian defense workers and the public in general are invited to witness this demonstration which has been developed by the Bell Telephone Company.

At 1.45 p. m. the students of the school will witness the demonstration. The demonstration has been arranged by L. Creighton Vandegrift, chief sector warden of Bensalem Township.

The demonstration was developed by the Bell Telephone Company to show how the various activities of the local civilian defense organizations are tied in with military defense groups in the event of an air raid.

Flashing lights, accompanied by sound effects, on a 10x18 foot panel, show the work by civilian defense workers from the time the first spotter hears the sound of approaching enemy planes until the last bit of damage has been taken care of by emergency squads.

Activities of Interest To All
In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY REPORTERS

Preparing for an election, which will take place in the near future, members of the ladies' auxiliary of Eagle Fire Company, at their meeting in the fire house, at New Hope, named candidates for various offices.

They were announced as follows: President, Mrs. Edward Williamson; vice president, Mrs. Lillian Detterter; and Mrs. Mary Fields; secretary, Miss Jennie Moore; Mrs. Miriam Naylor; Mrs. Mary Fields and Miss Anne Markey, and treasurer, Miss Clara Clark.

FFC Nicholas T. Rohs, Stephen Rohs, father, Hilltown, is listed as one of the 177 American soldiers and army nurses held as prisoners by the Japanese in the Philippines.

L. Willard Freed was elected commander of Naze-Kraft Post, No. 255, American Legion, at its meeting, last week, to fill the unexpired term of Harry S. Overbaugh, who has resigned.

During the meeting William M. Hill, Jr., was advanced to the office of first vice commander, and Alfred Hunt was elected second vice commander.

The post inducted its first World War II member, Lawrence Harzill, who was sponsored by Past Commander Paul F. Kline. Membership in the post at this time is open only to men who have been honorably discharged from either of the World Wars.

Five other names were added to the roster, when they were elected to membership posthumously. These are the men who have either been killed or died in the present war.

Word was received by Cleveland Hilson, Doylestown, that his nephew, Lt. Nicholas deB. Katzenbach, navigator, Army Air Corps, was reported as missing in action somewhere in the North African area.

Lt. Katzenbach enlisted in the Army a year ago while he was a student in the junior class at Princeton University, Princeton, N. J. He is the son of Mr. Hilson's sister, Mrs. Edward L. Katzenbach, Princeton, and the late Edward L. Katzenbach, former Attorney General of New Jersey.

A brother of Lieutenant Katzenbach is a lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps, stationed at the present time in South Carolina.

WOMAN OFFERS USE OF HER YARD AS GARDEN

Located on Roosevelt Street;
Many Here Desire To Start
Victory Plots

AS AID TO WAR EFFORT

A woman resident of the sixth ward has offered use of her large yard as a site for a Victory garden.

The offer is made by Mrs. A. Flaherty, 254 Roosevelt street, who states that anyone interested in using the plot may call at her home for more details.

Although Mrs. Flaherty states she does not know the exact size of the lawn, she does advise it is large.

Through the medium of The Bristol Courier two other plots in the sixth ward section were offered yesterday to people desiring to aid in the war effort by planting Victory gardens this spring.

It is anticipated that owners of land in other sections of the borough, as well as owners of plots in the outlying communities, will offer use of same.

Kaiser Visits Johnsville Plant of Brewster Corp.

NEW YORK, Mar. 17.—(INS)—Henry J. Kaiser today will visit the Johnsville, Pa., plant of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, which he took under control yesterday.

Production at Brewster's three plants have long fallen short of naval expectations and only yesterday Sen. Harry S. Truman (D., Mo.,) termed achievements of the firm "a sad disappointment in the plane program."

Kaiser, who has established enviable records in the construction of ships, stepped into the aircraft building picture through the purchase of the Fleetwings, Inc., plant at Bristol, Pa., about ten days ago. His taking over the Brewster management today expands those properties as Brewster has plants located in Newark, N. J., Long Island City, N. Y., and Johnsville, Pa.

Kaiser becomes chairman of the Brewster Corporation's board which is being reorganized and will include three of the present membership in the new make-up. The shipbuilding wizard, however, is not acquiring any of Brewster's stock.

Frederick Riebel, Jr., "trouble-shooter" for the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics, has been elected president of Brewster and under Kaiser will assume full production management responsibilities. In addition to him and Riebel, the new board consists of T. J. Walsh, Paul S. Marrin, Chad S. Calhoun, William S. Kurtz, Capt. George C. Westervelt, U. S. N. R., S. Dean Schnacke and E. E. Tresechen, Jr.

Young Woman Injured; Is Wedged Between Buses

Said to have been wedged between two buses near the entrance to Fleetwings plant early this morning, Miss June Carr, East Broad street, Burlington, N. J., suffered chest injuries.

The young woman was taken to the Wagner private hospital by the driver of one of the buses, Arthur F. Paulino. The X-ray is to be used to determine extent of the injuries.

Miss Carr was employed at Plant 2 of Fleetwings as an assembler, she having commenced working there last month. Coming to this section from Wilkes-Barre, she has been residing in Burlington recently. She was en route to her work when the accident occurred.

PFC Samuel Balocchi, who is located at Camp Forrest, Tenn., recently won a welterweight boxing trophy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Camillo Balocchi.

Services at Two Churches Are To Be "Staggered"

With the appointment last week of the Rev. George C. Lurwick as pastor of the Cornwells Heights Methodist Church, as well as of the Wilkinson Memorial Methodist Church, Croydon, which he has been serving, services at the two churches will be "staggered" in order that full-time ministry might be carried out. The naming of the Rev. Lurwick as pastor at Cornwells Church occurred at sessions of the Philadelphia Methodist conference held in Philadelphia.

Dr. Albert M. Witwer, North District superintendent, announces that the serving of the two congregations by one minister is a war-time measure, and that one clergyman will care for services at the two edifices only for the duration of the war. Although the churches have been combined under one pastorate, both churches will retain their separate identities, and will continue under full time programs.

The pastor and his family will reside in the parsonage at Cornwells Heights, taking up residence there this week.

Fred G. Devoe, Jr., Veteran Of World War No. 1, Dies

CROYDON, Mar. 17.—Fred G. Devoe, Jr., a veteran of World War I, died yesterday in the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia. He was the husband of Freda Howe Devoe, and had been ill for some time.

In April of 1917 Devoe had enlisted in the U. S. Naval Reserve, and was discharged in May of 1919. He had seen service overseas. Recently he had been employed by the Nesbitt Co., Philadelphia. He was a member of Joseph A. Schumacher Post, No. 1597, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

His survivors include his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Henry Scharf and Miss Ruth Devoe, and a son, Fred Devoe, 3rd; also his mother, Mrs. Fred Devoe, Sr.; a brother, Edwin H. Devoe; and a grandchild, all of Croydon.

The Rev. George Lurwick, pastor of Wilkinson Methodist Church, will conduct the service at the funeral home of Robert C. Ruchl, 314 Cedar street, on Friday afternoon at two o'clock. Burial will be in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call Thursday evening.

MISSING IN ACTION

A Newtown man, Samuel Elmer Derry, is one of the members of the U. S. Merchant Marine listed missing in war action. In a release from Washington, D. C., Albert Derry, N. State street, Newtown, is listed as the next of kin of Derry who was engaged as a messman.

Defends Allied Bombing Raids of Nazi "Sub" Base

London—Prime Minister Churchill today defended Allied bombing raids on the German submarine base at Lorient as "an essential part of Anglo-American strategy."

In response to a question, Churchill told the House of Commons that "we have repeatedly urged the French population to leave the coastal areas."

"I have no doubt," he declared, "they will understand operations such as the bombing of Lorient will bring victory nearer."

Axis Convoys Off Tunisia Are Bombed

Allied Headquarters in North Africa—Heavy new attacks by Allied bombing planes on Axis convoys off Tunisia and enemy positions inland were announced today by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Flying Fortresses yesterday carried out a sea sweep between Sicily and Tunisia. A convoy of six or seven motor barges filled with supplies was heavily attacked. Three of the craft were hit directly and set on fire.

British Blenheim bombers attacked an enemy airfield near the port of Gabes, straddling the field with many bombs. A nearby road was bombed as was a rail line connecting Gabes with the port of Sfax.

2 More Women Die in Delaware Explosion

Milford, Del.—The deaths today of two more women in the terrific explosion which practically razed the powder loading room of the Sussex Ordnance Company has raised to four the number of fatalities thus far.

In addition, 29 other employees were injured, nine of them seriously. The women who died this morning were:

Mrs. Catherine Thomas, of nearby Milton. Miss Edith Marker, Georgetown.

Physicians, meanwhile, feared the toll may go even higher.

DeGaulle Expected to Confer with Giraud

London—Fighting French headquarters announced today that Gen. Charles DeGaulle is expected to leave shortly to confer with Gen. Henri Honore Giraud at Algiers.

ONE TRESPASS SUIT, 3 DIVORCE ACTIONS FILED AT CO. SEAT

Charge Made That Bakery
Truck Driver Caused
A Collision

ASKS $6,379 DAMAGES

Middletown Twp. Man Seeks
Divorce; Bristol Woman
Charges Desertion

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 17.—One trespass suit and three for divorce have been filed in the Prothonotary's office here.

Charging that Joseph Moyer, bakery truck driver for the Lehigh Valley Bakeries, Inc., caused a collision with a railroad car by negligent driving, Ernest Ehly and Robert Ehly, a minor, 637 Greenleaf street, Allentown, have filed a claim for damages amounting to $6,379 against the driver and the company.

The accident occurred on September 5, 1942, when Robert Ehly was a passenger in the truck at Moyer's invitation. He was thrown out of the truck and received a fractured skull and other injuries to the extent that he was still in the hospital at the date of claim, March 6th.

Charging his wife, Josephine Brown, with desertion, Woolston Brown, Middletown township, has named her respondent. The couple were married March 28, 1934, in Baltimore, Md. The present residence of the respondent is 515 West 122nd street, New York, N. Y.

The same grounds, desertion, are named in a suit filed by Georgianna Harker, 604 Clymer street, Bristol, naming her husband, Edwin S. Harker, 561 Linden street, Bristol, respondent. They were married in Bristol in 1921.

Anna S. Kothstein charges her husband, Joseph Kothstein, with adultery, naming a co-respondent. They were married in Philadelphia, September 19, 1914. The residence of both is their farm in Tinticum township, but the actual abode of the libellant is the home of her daughter, Anna Bickel, in the same township.

United Nations Move To Smash U-Boat Menace

WASHINGTON, Mar. 17.—(INS)—The battle for control of the world's sealanes today raged on with increasing fury as the United Nations forces moved to smash the Nazi U-boat menace in the Atlantic and American submarines whittled away at Japanese communication lines in the Pacific.

Intensification of submarine campaigns by the United Nations and the Axis was indicated by the following developments:

1. The Navy announced that American, British and Canadian officials at a conference in Washington had reached "complete agreement" on the policy to be followed in the campaign to crush Nazi U-boat activities in the Atlantic.

2. This important announcement was followed only a few hours later by the disclosure that U. S. submarines in the Pacific have sunk four more enemy vessels, including a destroyer, and damaged three others.

The latest forays by U. S. submarines boosted to 195 the total number of Jap vessels sunk or damaged to date by American submarines.

The latest victims were one destroyer, one medium and one large cargo ship and one transport sunk and two cargo ships and one tanker damaged.

Interest was focused, however, on the joint announcement by Washington, Ottawa and London that United Nations leaders finally have agreed on a co-operative campaign to offset the anticipated Nazi spring offensive against United Nations supply lines to the European and African war zones.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

CHICAGO, Ill., Mar. 17.—William J. Veitch, 18, son of Mrs. Nellie Veitch, 793 Corson street, Bristol, Pa., has graduated from the U. S. Naval Training School for signalmen at the University of Chicago here. He awaits assignment to duty at sea or at a shore station as a "striker" for the petty officer rating of signalman, third class. He may receive the rating upon obtaining actual experience and passing a qualifying examination.

During the 16-week training period, he was taught how to send and receive international code by blinker, searchlight and semaphore and to identify flags of government departments, Naval craft and foreign ships. He also learned to use a pelorus and navigator's range finder, to operate searchlights and signal apparatus in darkness and identify storm warning and distress signals.

The Bluejacket earned selection to the school by making a high score in a series of aptitude tests taken during "boot" training.

POSTWAR PURPOSES

Three of the four largest and most influential United Nations partners—Great Britain, Russia and China—have now more or less clearly indicated the shape which their courses of national policy will take after the war. Only America, of the big four, has yet to come forth with at least an inkling of what her postwar policy will be.

The newest definition of a nation's peacetime aims are contained in Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's new book, "China's Destiny," which proposes a ten-year economic reconstruction period as the cornerstone for the gradual industrialization of his country. Chiang calls for the manufacture of 220,000 automobiles and 12,000 transport planes, and the training of a minimum of 2,400,000 young vocational school students for the beginnings of what he envisages as the opening of a great industrial era for China in the post-war period.

Chiang's ambitious plan is not modeled on the similar plans of Russia and Germany, which were really spurs to greater rearmament. His plan is more a broad outline which the energy of the Chinese themselves will fill in later or change to suit developments. The plan, furthermore, hints of no desires for spheres of influence outside the national boundaries.

Recent utterances of Stalin and Churchill have been in different vein. The latter has said that he does not intend to preside at any liquidation of the British Empire, a statement which would tend to indicate that Britain will come out of the war with at least as much as she had when she was forced in. And why not?

In his May Day speech Stalin declared that "we want to free our brother Ukrainians, Moldavians, White Russians, Lithuanians, Latvians, Estonians and Karelians from the insults to which they have been subjected by the German Fascist beasts." That is a specific way of saying that those parts of the old Czarist empire which were ceded in the treaty of Versailles, in which Russia was not invited to share, are going to return to the USSR.

Postwar lines are already being drawn up. Yet outside of some hazy utterances by Henry Wallace, America's intentions are still to be defined.

A USE FOR KNIVES

About the only constructive result of the plan, now repealed, against bakery-sliced bread was to provide thousands of householders with sharp steel knives which might be used in the event of an invasion of this country, and to stock the stores of merchants with wooden aid-to-slicing devices that might come in handy should civilization be wiped out and a return to primitive living become reality.

If officials persist in issuing silly bans that later are withdrawn, the people will get the notion that the thing is being done to show them how mean the bureaucrats can be, but how preternaturally benevolent they really are.

When Uncle Sam feeds the entire world, he will need a plentiful supply of silverware, napkins, finger bowls and table decorations.

Another good idea is swapping a complete set of golf clubs for a hoe, rake, spade and weeder.

tem and, second, changing and reducing the personnel. If he does nothing else, these two things will be a great gain. Certainly, they are the places to start, because OPA had become not only so unwieldy that it could not work but in addition it was in the hands of the wrong people. Already Mr. Brown has made a good beginning in correcting the latter basic defect. Within the past week he has gotten rid of Mr. John Hamm, deputy administrator under Mr. Henderson, and Mr. David Ginsberg, who, though he had never tried a law case in his life, was the OPA general counsel.

THE STORY of the 31-year-old Mr. Ginsberg's success in evading the draft and of his recent efforts to land a commission in the army have been fully told in the press. Probably the best idea of the situation is given by the contrast between Mr. Henderson's certification to the draft board of Mr. Ginsberg as an "indispensable" or "irreplaceable" man, and Mr. Brown's obvious relief over his resignation. At any rate, Mr. Hamm and Mr. Ginsberg have gone and it is understood, in the reorganization now on, other of the "young intellectuals," including several bumptious college professors, who are "not in harmony with the new policy," are scheduled to disappear.

THESE DEVELOPMENTS have caused pain in the higher New Deal circles and some bitter things are being said about Mr. Brown in what some regard as the "inner circle." But, that probably does not worry Mr. Brown. For one thing, he isn't the worrying sort. For another, he stands well with the President. For another, he stands well in Congress. The fact is that the more people like Mr. Ginsberg Mr. Brown gets rid of and the more he simplifies the system the greater progress he will make in converting the ill will toward the organization into good will.

HE DOES NOT have to get, as has been suggested, a super-salesman for an executive aide. All he needs to secure public co-operation is to convince the country that he has cleansed his agency of its phony economists and half-baked theorists and that he has substituted order and logic for confusion and incompetency. It may take Mr. Brown some time to get around to reorganizing his department along the sound lines of the price-fixing machine of the last war, but it is hoped it will not take him as long as it has the heads of other agencies which started out to disregard the lessons of experience, but in the end had to accept them. It is true Mr. Brown is no ball of fire and he was a lame duck Senator. Also, he is a New Dealer. Otherwise, he would hardly have gotten the job. Nevertheless, he is no wild-eyed world savior. On the contrary, he seems a level-headed man anxious to make sense. And he will have the best wishes of a great many people if he continues along the lines he appears to be going.

"THEY SELL SAILORS ELEPHANTS"

by FREDERICK HAZLITT BRENNAN

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

One afternoon, two days before the Handicap, a vegetable truck drove into the Nuthberger Merry-Go-Round. The Pearl motioned to Miss Georgine Ryan. Senior Angelo Fernandez bowed and smiled, but allowed The Pearl to do all the talking.

"Hullo, Robert! What'll it be?" "Nothin', Miss Georgine. I's got to ax you sumfin'."

"Okay, kid, shoot!" "Whur'll I fin' Mistah Linn an' Mistah Dunnevan?"

"They're on the ship. Won't be in till tonight. Why?"

"Oh, Lowsy, Miss Georgine, dat ain't soon enough. Dem sailuhs sent Mistah Voice an' Mistah Ten Puh-cent down to de fa'm to git Palsie!"

"Who—oh . . . the horse with fallen arches, huh?"

"Yas'm. Dey's fixin' to swap Palsie back to dat Shamrock horse. On de dey, dey's fixin' it!"

Georgine's eyes narrowed. "Oh, they did sell Shamrock to Sedgwick?"

"Yas'm. Didn't dey tell you? Mistah Sedgwick paid 'em five gran' fo' dat Shamrock horse. But I agin swappin' Palsie back, on account he's a bettah horse dan Shamrock an'—"

"Whoa, Robert!" "Yas'm?"

"If Sedgwick is the real owner of The Shamrock why did he let Tim and Benny keep the horse in their name?"

"'Tis too whee, don't you even know dat? Mistah Sedgwick's lady frien' is plumb agin horse-racin', Miss Georgine. She'd bust his hair if'n she knowed he two-tide her wid dat horse!"

"Robert, you are like a flash of light in a dark night!"

"Yas'm, but I got to git wid to Mistah Linn an' Mistah Dunnevan—"

"About what?"

The Pearl rolled his eyes.

"I's got to essplain sumfin, Miss Georgine."

"Explain what?"

"How come Mistah Voice an' Mistah Ten Puh-cent dey couldn't 'fin' Palsie?"

"Good lord, he's dead?"

"No'm, he ain't dead. I hides him!" Georgine gri-ned.

"Robert, you are a nice boy," she said, "I'm gonna present you and your chaf-fur with two great big ice cream cones!"

"Yas'm—but I got to essplain—"

"I'll tell Tim and Benny soon as they come ashore. You wait for those cones."

"Yas'm."

As soon as The Pearl and Angelo had started back to the vegetable farm, Georgine went into executive session with Millicent.

"I hope it won't come as too much of a shock, honey," she said, "but Benny and Tim have lied to us!"

"What about, this time?"

Georgine pitifully summarized the situation. Then she added, "Would you like to see how two little girls can get two sailors outa the Navy?"

"Teli!"

"It's a long story, pal. I'll tell you on our way to Coronado."

A holly-bay brought the faithful message to Miss Templeton, as she was dressing for dinner.

"Miss Ryan and Miss Hecksher are in the lobby. They say it's about Tim and Benny. They told me to tell you that Tim and Benny are in trouble."

"Oh . . . have them come up."

Millicent giggled nervously as soon as she saw Elnora and then began to sob. But Georgine told the tale of tragic betrayal as woman-to-woman.

"Tim and Benny are in an awful jam, Miss Templeton!" she blurted.

"They sold The Shamrock to Mr. Sedgwick on the sly. Then—"

"I beg your pardon, but they sold him the other horse—the one with bad feet."

"Oh, no, Miss Templeton! Is that what they told you? It ain't so. They sold the good horse to Mr. Sedgwick. Then they talked him into leavin' Shamrock in their stable as a front to hide the real truth. That puts Tim and Benny in business with Mr. Sedgwick, see? They's a very stric' law against enlisted men bein' in business with an officer. Mr. Sedgwick is in the flying school, so that—"

"I see your point."

"But we don't know what to do! If it comes out it'll ruin Mr. Sedgwick in his career. Tim and Benny just worked the old rummy-gazoo on him. They oughta get a court for it an' be kicked right outa the U. S. Navy!"

There was good stuff in Miss Templeton. Despite the shock of her own disappointment, she would not lay all the blame on those wretched sailors.

"I dare say it was partly Mr. Sedgwick's fault," she observed, in a cold, small voice. "The thing for you girls to do is not to talk about it to anyone. I'm pretty sure I can handle the situation."

Millicent snuffled.

"Won't it get Tim and Benny put outa that Navy?"

"Perhaps."

Georgine added a finishing touch. "Not alone was they forcin' poor everybody else, but they was plannin' to cheat him in a criminal way before the big Handicap race!"

Elnora nodded.

"I'll bear that in mind!" she said. Miss Ryan and Miss Hecksher departed in a sort of feline silence.

Picking up the phone, Elnora called the Officers' Club at North Island. She left word for Aviation Cadet Sedgwick that she wished to see him as soon as he got off duty. She then telephoned the bungalow of Lieut.-Commander John Herriek in Coronado. She told Mrs. Herriek that she would stop by there during the evening.

Then she collapsed on a chaise longue and had a good cry.

An hour later, whispering blithely, Bert Sedgwick walked right into it.

"Why, darling, what's the matter?"

"Don't darling me!"

"But I don't get it—"

Elnora related the whole record of his perfidy in a heart-broken torrent of words. When he blustered, she cited chapter and verse. When he gulped and reddened, she flayed him with scorn. When he confessed and hung his head, she burst into tears. Then, she poured it on a bit too much.

"I've tried to make an officer and a gentleman of you, Bert!" she said, "but it's no use. You're a race horse man. A cheap, low jockey. A tout and a gambler. Show 'em! Sedgwick, they call you. They should call you 'Also Ran' Sedgwick!"

Bert stifled. "Show Money" was an epithet he might have endured. But "Also Ran" was insupportable. No sportsman who owns a horse that can run the mile in 1:37 and is entered for the Handicap can justly be denounced as "Also Ran" Sedgwick.

"Oh . . . so you think that of me, eh?"

"Yes, yes, yes!"

"Don't give me a chance at the Handicap, eh?"

"No, no, no! And here's your ring!"

She threw it at him. He let it lie on the floor.

"Very well, Elnora," he said with quiet dignity. "I'm sorry I fibbed to you. But I can't and won't say I'm ashamed of owning The Shamrock. He is, it seems, all I have left. So be it! Good-bye, Elnora!"

"Get out, get out, you— you horse!"

"Right!"

It did not take Elnora long, after Bert had left, to realize that she had overplayed her hand. When Mrs. Templeton came in from a late bridge party and heard what had happened, she spoke words of maturity and wisdom.

"Horses are a bad habit, like drink and drugs and gambling, dear," said Elnora's mother. "You behaved very stupidly. All you've succeeded in doing is to drive the poor boy back to his vice. Has that horse of his any chance to win the Handicap?"

"Oh, mother—I—I'm afraid so!"

"If that happens, Bert is lost."

Elnora lifted a determined chin. "It isn't going to happen!" she said.

She washed her face, put on hat and topcoat and left the hotel to have a heart-to-heart talk with Lieut.-Commander Herriek.

The borough of Brooklyn, honored in a movie, had a great deal to do with writing the story of the film, according to Producer Walter Morosco.

"Our story, of course, is fictional," he declared, speaking of "It Happened in Flatbush," now at the Ritz Theatre, "but many of its sequences can be traced to famous stories about Brooklyn and its baseball-mad citizenry." "Junior Army" stars Freddie Bartholomew.

Meets Four Bristol Boys in North Africa

from "Somewhere in North Africa" I've received within the past two weeks one package of canned goods (fruit salad, juice, jar of cheese, etc.) Then I got a telegram acknowledging my Christmas cable, which carried my London cable address. I have no new cable address here as yet. . . . And this morning I finally got that toiletary carrying case. Boy, it certainly is a swell one, all leather with that oil-silk lining, and has my initials on it. I can't thank you enough for sending me that. . . . I understand that no more packages will be permitted to be sent from the states to soldiers overseas. Is that correct? . . .

I just received a promotion from T/5 to T/4. . . . Although it shouldn't be necessary, I guess you like to hear it each time I write. Everything is O. K. I'm well and feeling fine. You can be sure the army sees to that. Periodically they give us all "shots" to ward off contagious diseases, and at present I'm having my teeth checked. I'm back in "civilization"—that is, I am in a big city where there is comparatively little danger.

Oh, yes, here is some news that might interest you. I met a Bristol boy whom I used to go to school with, and now works the same place I do. He has been in the store quite a bit and you no doubt remember speaking to him. His name is Frank Parr, and we were inducted on the same day, October 10, 1941. We had quite a talk together, and he told me how things were back in good old Bristol when he left. He said you and dad were looking fine (that sure made me feel good), and that the place was as busy as ever. Also, the streets were clear of all young men—as most of them were now in the army. And things were getting so that a fellow was better off in the army. It really gave my morale a 100 per cent boost to talk to someone from town again. Then a couple of days later I bumped into three fellows I knew in Bristol. I met them at the Red Cross Club here. They are: Joe Gallagher, Basil Capriotti and Jasper Genco, and they are all in the cavalry. I wouldn't be a bit surprised if there were lots more Bristol boys "over here."

I'm starting to get the local paper again—of course they are old issues (about two months), nevertheless it is welcome. . . . Keep 'em coming.

You may be interested to know the reason for my promotion. Although I still do basically the same type of work, I now have a more responsible position, that requires technicians. And, as I become more proficient I'll be advanced in grade.

Your loving son,
PAUL

Bad News for Axis Comes From All Parts of Globe

calities were captured in the latter theater. Australians today celebrated the first anniversary of the arrival of General Douglas MacArthur from the Bataan Peninsula and American and Allied airmen joined in the festivities by staging one of the most extensive air assaults yet to be initiated in the southwest Pacific. Dobo, the Japanese stronghold on Aroo Island, intended as a jumping-off place for invasion of Australia, was blasted by American bombers and its radio station, barracks and supply depots were left in shambles. Simultaneously, Allied and American forces again pounded the important bases of Lae and Salamaua, setting fire to huge oil stores and leaving conflagrations which were visible for more than twenty miles. A small Japanese convoy also was attacked and turned back and other enemy shipping, aimed at replenishing supplies of important bases were either sunk or heavily damaged. Low flying planes, raiding the convoy with repeated runs, raked the decks of several heavily-laden troopships and killed untold numbers of Nipponese troops. From Washington came the announcement that American submarines operating in the Pacific had sunk four more Japanese ships, including a destroyer. This brought to 199 the number of Japanese craft sent to the bottom by American subs. Washington also announced launching of an unprecedented anti-submarine campaign to clear the Atlantic of Nazi undersea craft. In the capital, the plan was seen as the first move in protecting American sea lanes preparatory to an invasion of Europe. American, British and Canadian forces will co-operate in the secret campaign, it was announced, operations probably being under command of a high U. S. naval officer. Little action was reported in Tunisia but preparations were being made feverishly for the anticipated drive of the British Eighth Army against the Mareth line. Minor skirmishes already have resulted in a slight British advance but heavy equipment streaming up to the front leaves no doubt as to Sir General Bernard L. Montgomery's intention to pulverize the Nazi defenses.

Reports of Various Services Presented

John Burtonwood, in charge of first aid, reported 1153 persons as taking the course under Red Cross in 1942. At present there is one new first aid class being conducted in Croydon.

Attention was called to the blood donor unit visitation to Harriman Hospital, on April 7th. The amount of blood needed has been increased since Pearl Harbor, and the declaration of war. The Army and Navy request for 1943, is 4,000,000 pints of blood. The plasma is rushed to front-line trenches, or stored aboard ship and is made available for immediate use by simply mixing it with distilled water. Bristol has given 554 pints of blood to date. Kindly make reservation for time at headquarters, 120 Mill street, phoning 2476. Mrs. Marie Holland, executive secretary, announced she has been in touch with families of those killed or injured in the Rohm and Haas Co. catastrophe, offering any assistance Red Cross could render them. Inquiries of "Where is my boy?" are being received at headquarters in Philadelphia to the number of 4000 a day, she stated. Mrs. Holland advised use of the V mail letters when writing to the armed forces overseas.

Mrs. Holland stated: "Twice a week, packages of food are packed in Philadelphia, and sent to Geneva, and thence to various parts of the world where boys are held as prisoners." Mrs. Holland said she has had 49 new cases during the past month, 37 active, two ex-service, and one civilian. Of the 37 active cases, 24 are brief and 13 continued contacts. Eighteen cases have been closed. One hundred and seven cases are still the load—65 active, 31 civilian; 11 ex-service.

Miss Frances Landreth reported the spending of 26 1/4 hours in home service. The production report was then given by Mrs. Clarence Moyer for the month of February which showed that 79 women had contributed 1177 hours in sewing, knitting, and in making of the much needed surgical dressings.

The war fund drive progresses, with people realizing the great importance of contributions generous enough to help the million boys in our armed forces, it was reported. "Red Cross spends $10 a year on each soldier in the various helps given him wherever he may be, and always for every donation the giver receives a receipt."

The following members of the board were present at the meeting: Mrs. DeLong, Mrs. Hugh B. Eastburn, Mrs. George Hussey, Mrs. Frederick I. Kraft, Mrs. E. Linton Martin, Mrs. Frank Lehman, Mrs. George Wright, Mrs. Carl Foell, Mrs. Thomas G. Hawkes, Mrs. Max Seigel, Mrs. Clarence Moyer, Mrs. Walter Pitzonka, Mrs. Harry Frederick, Mrs. Samuel Roberts, Mrs. William G. Calver, Mrs. [was elected chairman; Mrs. Pitzonka, William DuHamel, Miss Frances Lan-vice-chairman; and Mrs. David Sheer-dreth. At this meeting, Mrs. DeLong 'er, a member of the Board.

ASK the ski trooper why he welcomes ice-cold Coca-Cola. He will tell you what every ski enthusiast knows. Few things can make you thirstier than skiing. The dry cold, the exertion, the altitude do it. Experienced skiers know that Coca-Cola is the perfect refreshment after a ski run.

Coca-Cola not only quenches thirst. It adds refreshment that goes into energy. It is refreshment that tastes good, feels good, is good. Coca-Cola is made with choicest ingredients put together with a finished art.

Each time you raise an ice-cold Coca-Cola to your lips, you'll agree that the only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola, itself.

Even with war and so many Coca-Cola bottling plants in enemy-occupied countries, our fighting men are delighted to find Coca-Cola being bottled in so many places all over the globe.

Even with snow and ice outdoors, it's summertime indoors. Ice-cold Coca-Cola is the year 'round answer to thirst that everybody welcomes.

The best is always the better buy!
